Also this is our 37th year of trading and it's all thanks to you, our loyal customers. Our new website has been upgraded continually during the year making it even better than before. So many new things have happened this year, where do I start?

Have you seen my new BRAAI Blog site, for food mad and especially Braaiing (BBQ) mad people? I posted at least once a week something that I cooked on the Braai for ONE WHOLE YEAR and that's not easy living in the UK where the sun never seems to shine. So come and join me on this journey in all weathers, come what may. If there is something you would like to see cooked, just drop me a line and I will try to cook it. You will find me at www.foodilove.co.uk

So, if you cannot get hold of Larry ask for her or contact her on sales@susman.com. Lauren deals with all the office work and the telephone calls so say hi when you speak to her.

A TASTE OF AFRICA

How to store your Biltong Our biltong is made and stored in a strict controlled environment, until we receive your order. Then and only then, we choose what you have asked for and pick it, slice it and pack it for you personally. You will receive your biltong packed in gas-flushed thick plastic bags and packed in a protective atmosphere. So keep the bags sealed and intact until you decide to eat it. However always be aware that the wetter your biltong is the shorter the shelf life. Once you open the bag, eat it or put the remainder of your biltong in an OPEN bowl and mix it up a bit. Make sure that you turn and mix up the biltong daily, this helps it to air but always eat within 3 days of opening if you can. Hang whole sticks of biltong on a hook or string, in a cool, dry, well-ventilated place. Never store in a sealed container, it will sweat and this will lead to mould growth. Biltong needs to 'breathe' it likes to be in dry air and make sure that it's not touching anything else otherwise the following applies.

WATER + OXYGEN + HEAT + CONTACT = MOULD

Please note that we now have meat from S.A, Botswana as well as our meat from Scotland.

Susmans Wine Selection

Over the last ten years, the outlook of the South African wine industry has changed beyond recognition. Having emerged from its years of isolation it has adapted quickly to become a world leader and international player. The competitive international market has brought about a rapid rethink on styles of wine and future plantings. Belonging both to the old and new worlds of wine, the South African market has developed an edge with tradition on one hand, and advanced technology on the other. We hope you enjoy our choice of wines.
